

Minor Changes Made In Lodge Program; Gan Eden Is Host

TERRE HAUTE—Minor changes in the program for the twentieth annual convention of the Indiana-Kentucky State Association of B'nai B'rith were announced by the convention committee this week as the community prepared to welcome delegates and guests from lodges in the two states.

A reception and dance for delegates, guests and the Jewish community at large has been arranged for Saturday night in the vestry rooms of United Temple. Replacing a reception originally scheduled for the Terre Haute House, the affair will begin about 9:30 p. m.

The convention will get under way at 10 a. m., Sunday, with all activities centered in the Terre Haute House. Morning and afternoon sessions have been arranged, and Gan Eden Lodge will be host at a buffet luncheon at 12:30 p. m. Richard Gutstadt, director of the Anti-Defamation League, will speak at a banquet, set for 6:30 p. m. at the Terre Haute House.

The complete program appears on page two.

Brodericks To Instruct At Sisterhood Dance

Mrs. Aaron Arnold, chairman, and Mrs. Abe Goldsmith, co-chairman, have announced that Jac and Don Broderick, well known dancing instructors, will teach the "La Conga" at the dance sponsored by the Beth El Sisterhood at 8 p. m. Sunday, Oct. 27, at the temple, 11th and Ruckel streets.

Jack Maurer will be master of ceremonies. Bwen Abravaya, the blues singer, and a chorus of sixteen girls, all students of the Jac Broderick Studio, are also on the program. A surprise act also has been arranged.

Earl Breech and his orchestra and the Brodericks will help everyone learn the La Conga quickly and easily. Admission will be 44 cents per person.

Time Shoos Off Bigoted Readers

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
NEW YORK.—The magazine Time has served notice that it wants no readers who cultivate hatreds."

The announcement was published in the current issue in the form of a reply to a letter by two Pennsylvania readers concerning their subscriptions with the assertion: "Our poor stomachs are no longer strong enough to handle Time. We can have Jew Beaverbrook, etc.—we still believe America is saving from this holocaust Americans—not British."

"Just as neither Franklin Roosevelt nor Wendell Willkie wants anti-Semitic votes, so Time wants readers who cultivate race hatreds," the magazine replied, adding that Lord Beaverbrook was a Jew but a Presbyterian descended from a long line of Presbyterians.

NINETY-TWO YEAR OLD LODGE IS HOST TO B'NAI B'RITH

Old-Timers Describe Change In Activities From 50 Years Ago

By B. B. ROWE

TERRE HAUTE—Delegates who come here Sunday for the twentieth annual convention of the Indiana-Kentucky State Association of the Independent Order of B'nai B'rith will be guests of a seventy-two-year-old lodge whose membership includes 90 per cent of the community's eligible men and almost 100 per cent from surrounding towns.

Organized in June of 1868, Gan Eden Lodge draws membership and officers from sons and grandsons of the men whose names appear on the ornately lithographed charter which hangs in the meeting room at United Temple. Its history spans a period from the time when the charity-minded founders could not find recipients for their benevolence, down to days when aid for the victims of persecution and economic maladjustment is a major activity of the group.

Headed by lank, soft-spoken Lester Wolf as president, the lodge has 181 members, ranging in age from an octogenarian down to youngsters barely arrived at the eligible age.

With a half-century of continuous membership back of him, Meyer Mannberger holds the distinction of longest membership. Advancing years—he is 80, has caused him to drop out of active participation, but he still retains membership.

Veteran of more than forty years active membership, 75-year-old Leo Joseph, white-haired but energetic, is the lodge's oldest active member. Likewise the oldest living ex-president, he has held every office in the lodge, is now a trustee.

Youngsters Now Lead

Looking back over the years, Mr. Joseph can see many changes in the order, one of the most basic being the trend toward a younger leadership.

"Back in the early days," Mr. Joseph recalled, "you had to have a beard and gray hair to be an officer. Now the younger fellows are in charge, and they're doing a fine job."

Dues were 50 cents a month when Mr. Joseph joined, and the lodge was virtually a plutocratic institution in those days, with a bank account of $1,000 or more. Benevolent impulses flamed high in the lodge's collective heart, but there weren't many poor in those days. When a needy case did appear, aid was dispensed with a lavish hand.

The lodge once provided finances to make it possible for two Jewish boys to enter the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis. Their naval careers were short—one died and failing eyes forced the other out of the service.

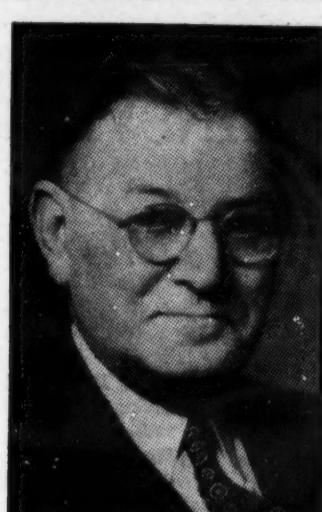

Largely Social Group

With few dark problems to bother them, the lodge forty years ago was largely a social institution, Mr. Joseph says. Meetings were leisurely affairs, held on Sunday afternoon, and frequently ended with a pinochle game. The Wider Scope Committee, Anti-Defamation League and Hillel Foundation were not yet born.

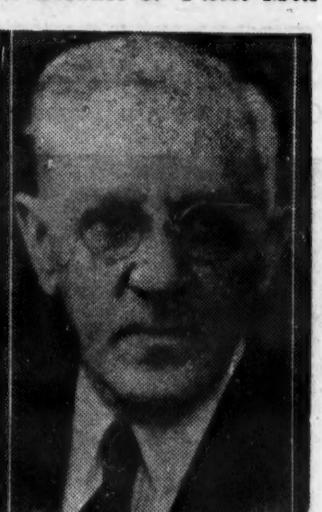

Another "old-timer" is Louis Brown, member for thirty-five years and still enthusiastic and active, and a trustee.

Pleased with the interest shown by the younger members, Mr. Brown thinks there still is a place for the older men. "The older members can supply qualities to help the work of the younger men," he says.

A better type of delegate is being sent to Grand Lodge conventions in the past few years. Mr.

Brown thinks. Real ability and actual work, rather than social and economic position, he says, is now considered in choosing delegates.

T. Schloss. Rabbi J. Marshall Taxay is the third.

When Harry T. Schloss was district president in 1906, Gan Eden was host to the District Grand Lodge.

That Terre Haute was a thriving Jewish community when the lodge was organized is shown by the fact that there were nineteen charter members. They were:

S. L. Straus, Philip Schloss, S. Frank, J. Erlanger, Moe Joseph, J. Kuppenheimer, A. Arnold, M. Riegelman, E. Rothschild, E. Strouse, S. Loeb, S. Ettinger, S. Hamburger, B. Weisz, A. Herz, L. Haas, E. Edelstein, A. Kohn and J. Strouse.

Lodge Works With Refugees

The lodge's program this year places heavy emphasis on Americanism work. Much of the work with refugees, which in larger communities falls on a special committee, in Terre Haute is handled by Gan Eden. The lodge assisted in the registration of aliens and has sponsored a series of motion pictures, on Americanism themes, in the city schools.

Study groups and round table discussions are other activities.

Gan Eden draws members from Sullivan, Vincennes, Lawrenceville, Clinton and Marshall. Robinson, Ill., furnishes three members.

Officers, besides Mr. Wolf, are: Vice president, Edward Chaskin; treasurer, Alfred Roth; recording secretary, Stanley Dreyfus; financial secretary, Louis Shatsky;

CHARTERED BUS TRIPS POPULAR

Now that fall is here and schools are in session there are a hundred and one ways that a chartered bus trip can be used for education and entertainment. The chartered bus department of Indianapolis Railways, Riley 1571, is prepared to serve your needs for special bus transportation at any time day or night.

School tours to the parks to see the fall foliage, class excursions to the business district to visit stores, public buildings, and go sight-seeing and group trips to the Children's Museum are popular with the younger generation.

Adults enjoy sight-seeing tours about the city, tours to manufacturing plants and group transportation for club meetings. Often ladies who plan a club meeting at some distant point in the city or Marion county charter a bus so the group can remain together throughout the trip without any motoring worries.

Experienced operators, who have been carefully selected and trained, assure chartered bus patrons of a safe and reliable trip. Vehicles are comfortable and modern, thus assuring an enjoyable ride.

Call Indianapolis Railways, Riley 1571, any time for chartered bus information. Rates are surprisingly low.

Hadassah To Hear Editor of Advocate

Sidney J. Jacobs of Chicago, editor of "The Advocate," Jewish weekly, will be guest speaker at the opening luncheon meeting of Hadassah at 1 p. m. next Tuesday, Oct. 22, at Beth El Temple.

Mr. Jacobs is a graduate of the Medill School of Journalism of Northwestern University and of the Chicago College of Jewish Studies. He is educational adviser to the Chicago Jewish Youth Leagues.

Rabbi Maurice Goldblatt will give the invocation and Rabbi Elias Charry will close the meeting with a benediction.

Mrs. S. A. Silberman will give the president's message and will introduce the new officers and committee chairmen.

The program will be introduced by Mrs. Marcus Cohen, program chairman.

Mrs. David Hollander, chairman of the hospitality committee, will be assisted by her co-chairmen, Mrs. Louis Barnett and Mrs. Sidney Shane.

Butler President Is Brotherhood Speaker

Dr. Daniel Robinson, president of Butler University will be principal speaker at an open meeting of the Temple Brotherhood at 8:15 p. m., Tuesday, Oct. 22, in The Temple auditorium.

Following the invocation by Rabbi Maurice Goldblatt, the speaker will be introduced by Dr. Maurice M. Feuerlicht. Dr. Robinson will speak on "The Spiritual Interpretation of Kinship and Brotherhood." To complete the program, several selections will be rendered on the new organ by Mrs. Stewart Greene.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments will be served in the vestry rooms. President Saul L. Munter will be chairman of the meeting. Butler students of Jewish faith have been extended a special invitation to attend.

Committee Chairmen announced for the 1940-41 season will be: Program, Jack B. Kammins, chairman and Dr. Harry A. Jacobs, co-chairman; membership, Isidore Feibleman, chairman; refreshments, Sam Beck, chairman, and Walter Lichtenstein co-chairman; hospitality, Edward Cohn, chairman and Sidney Mahalowitz, co-chairman and publicity, Edgar M. Fassburg, chairman.

Mrs. Goodman Declares Minyanim Work Vital

The necessity for minyanim who are making collections for the support of Youth Aliyah to continue their work was emphasized this week by Mrs. J. A. Goodman, national Hadassah board member. "The war has not curtailed Youth Aliyah activities," Mrs. Goodman said, "but on the contrary the program has been enlarged." Mrs. Goodman pointed out that the first group of fifty children who are part of a larger group of 733 Jewish youth, will leave Denmark for Palestine next week.

"Indianapolis Jewish women have been liberal in supporting Youth Aliyah," Mrs. Goodman said, "and I know they realize the necessity for continuing their efforts in its behalf."

Speaks on

The Gentile Problem

A CITIZEN says I should be sure to read "The Gentile Problem" in the August number of the Christian Centry. I haven't gotten around to it yet but I like the title of the piece and have appropriated it for this week's column.

We hear so much said about the Jewish problems—we ourselves do much of the talking on the subject—that it is a relief to take up the Gentile problem. I am really sick and tired of being a problem.

Of course, there is no Gentile problem any more than there is in reality a special Jewish problem. Yet it is as easy to invent the Gentile problem as it was to invent the Jewish problem. I shall invent it.

I shall walk down the street, and whom do I see? He is the Gentile John Q. Zilch. I don't know Zilch but recently I read about him. He is the one who swindled a lot of people in that stock deal.

"Do you know who that is?" I ask my wife who is with me. "That is Zilch the Gentile."

"Those Gentiles again," she sighs.

"Yes, the time will come when we will have to do something about Gentiles," I observe. "The way they swindle people."

My wife recalls some Gentiles she has read about in the paper . . . "There was that awful pickpocket they caught in the street car yesterday. He had a Gentile name."

Her niece's cousin once heard of a Gentile who put over something in a real estate deal.

"Gentile's," she says, "certainly like money and know how to get it. There's that Henry Ford. They say he has a billion dollars. And that Rockefeller! He has his hands in everything. Do you know, he runs all the oil wells. He thinks he is the foundation of everything—the Rockefeller Foundation. He controls disease and everything."

Then, as I point out, the Gentiles seem to hold the best public offices and they are in all the banks and have the best houses in town and drive some of the best cars . . . You can scarcely go anywhere without having a Gentile to deal with.

My wife whispers: "And do you know what? Gentiles are international bankers—like Morgan."

"Yes," I reply, "and they are communists, too. That Browder is a Gentile."

"My mother's brother's sister-in-law told me about their being international bankers. She read it somewhere."

We come to the Empire State Tower. I pointed up to its graceful height . . . "And who do you think was that building? Gentile, of course. And who made the steel that's in it? Gentiles."

"Yes," she says, "and we have only a jalopy but these Gentiles have all those swell cars."

ELL, it is as easy as that to invent a Gentile problem — as simple as it was to make the Jewish problem. You pick out a few Gentiles you don't like—some bad ones and some rich ones — and say, "Yes, there are Gentiles for us. We'll certainly have to do something about Gentiles, considering the kind of people they are."

It isn't even necessary to know about Gentiles in order to make a problem out of them. In fact, you feed your prejudices more successfully if you don't know any of the group of people you despise. If you knew Gentiles you would discover that most of them are decent people and that discovery might be fatal to your prejudice. For the successful invention of a Gentile problem one shouldn't bother with the truth about Gentiles.

After you have worked up a distaste for some Gentiles, nothing any Gentile does will please you. Your aunt tells you what she heard about Gentiles from your cousin to whom it came from her sister-in-law who had it from her brother's-in-law niece, and you pass it all assiduously along and pretty soon you may have an Anti-Gentile movement to solve the Gentile problem.

People who can't understand what is troubling the world will say, "Yes, that's what's the matter—the Gentiles. My mother's cousin's husband's aunt's niece told me something about some Gentiles."

Thus, in time, you may even become a führer. People will say, "Yes, that man knows what he is talking about." Everyone will remember a Gentile whom he heard about—some Gentile who beat his wife, or some Gentile who skinned the landlord out of the rent, or some Gentile who was a banker . . . "That man sure has the dope," and so thousands will come to follow you wherever you may lead them.

Happily, none of this ever can happen to Gentiles, who being in a majority, never will be picked on. I congratulate them and rejoice in their immunity, for some of my best friends are Gentiles.

YET it has been a great comfort for me to lay off the Jewish problem. The fact is that I, as a Jew, am and of right ought to be no more of a problem than any other human being. To be sure, the whole human race is an awful problem and I, the Jew, am nothing special.

All in all, when I take myself apart, I discover that I am like everybody else. My faults are all the faults of the human kind and my few virtues are of the common fund of human virtues. Yet I am called a problem.

Jews themselves, in fact, make a complex problem of their being. They are always looking inwardly and asking who they are—whether a race, a nation, or a religion, I suppose, though, that if they were let alone they would accept themselves for what they are—human beings whose origins would trouble them no more than a man of Irish, Scotch or Scandinavian descent is troubled about the ethnical causes of his being.

I myself try to simplify myself. Well, I say, I am just a human being who happens to have been born into a family of the Jewish religion.

Kirshbaum League Lays Season's Plans

The Basketball Intramural League, inaugurated for the first time last year, will be featured again this year as part of the athletic program, Norman Weisman, athletic director, announced. A planning meeting has been called for 2 p. m. Sunday, Nov. 10, at the Center.

Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Pinkus have moved to St. Louis, where Mr. Pinkus is connected with the advertising department of Donna-Lo, manufacturers of cosmetic supplies.

That is nothing to brood about. I am like any other of the human kind, except for those differences of personality that are caused by my glands.

Nevertheless, at this hour every week I take to my typewriter and write an entire column that generally relates to the complexities of being Jewish.

Leo Kaminsky To Teach Public Speaking Course

"Effective Speech," a new course in public speaking, will be offered this year for the first time by Kirshbaum Center with Leo Kaminsky, prominent Indianapolis attorney, instructor. The course will consist of nine weekly sessions at 8:15 p. m. every Thursday, starting Nov. 7.

Of the nine sessions, four will be devoted to the practice of oratory, argumentation and persuasion; two sessions to effective panel discussions, and three to the interpretative reading of poetry, prose and dialogue.

Registrations must necessarily be limited. Interested members are asked to contact Richard Kramer, director of men's activities, as soon as possible. The course is free to members with a charge of $1 for the series for non-members.

PHI BETA DELTA

By Louis Sosin

BLOOMINGTON—Dancing to the music of Brother Zeke Shapiro and his band on Nov. 2 in the chapter house will be the actives, pledges and guests of Phi Beta Delta. Hard at work on the plans for the eleventh annual pledge dance are Al Rosenberg, Al Kossoff and Rudy Grunfeld, house president, social chairman and assistant, respectively. The dance is in honor of the pledges of Alpha Theta and the new actives who will be initiated the night before the dance.

The pledge class will conduct the annual All-Campus Jewish Women's Get-together at the chapter house on Oct. 23.

Bob Hirschberg, sophomore; Harold Coleman, junior, and Gersten Rappaport, junior, ranked in the upper 9 per cent of their classes, scholastically, according to the registrar's report for last semester.

Bernie Kaufman has been made senior wrestling manager, while Stan Schwartz is junior manager. Bill Goldberg has been working as a sophomore football manager. Kaufman will earn his "I" this year, and Schwartz, his numerals.

A huge number of guests and alumni are expected to visit the chapter house this Saturday. Buffet lunch and supper will be served to a crowd, expected to number 100. In connection with the homecoming game against Iowa, Phi B. D. has decorated the front yard for entry in the contest sponsored by the school.

Last week Phi B. D. opened its touchball schedule by losing a heartbreaker to N. A. G. U., 13-0. The second tilt, with Alpha Tau Omega, was rained out.

Loon Klein, pledge, is practicing daily with the freshman swimming squad, and shows promise of developing into an outstanding swimmer.

Al Kossoff and Phil Shifrin were inducted into the Advertising and Merchandising Club of the university last week.

Among the guests of the chapter house last Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Morris Klein, Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Unger, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Rabin, and Mr. and Mrs. F. Glick.

SIGMA ALPHA MU

By Arnold Marks

BLOOMINGTON.—Saturday the chapter extends its hospitality to many alumni and friends who have come down to Bloomington for Indiana's annual Homecoming celebration, featured by the Big Ten match with the Iowa Hawkeyes. The guests will be served a buffet supper in the Chapter house after the game.

Last night, Bernard Finkle of Englewood, N. J., was initiated by the A. M.

For Sol Blickman, who last year and his freshman numerals, is a member of the varsity swimming squad and is one of Coach Victor's most promising prospects. Leon Rosenberg has been appointed sophomore swimming manager, giving the house five athletic managements.

Bob Nerenberg has been elected to the university Inter-Fraternity Council, and will assume the position of secretary, which was vacated by the resignation of Fra Eddie Siegel.

Guests during the week included Mrs. Kate Mueller, Dean of Women, and her husband.

SIGMA DELTA TAU

By Evelyn Slung

BLOOMINGTON—Indiana University's honor roll for the second semester of last year, recently announced, included Mildred Horowitz, Jeanne Sacks and Florence Miller, all juniors. This honor roll includes only students in the upper ten per cent of their classes.

The pledges are busily preparing plans for homecoming decorations, when Indiana plays Iowa this Saturday. Many alumnae and guests are expected this weekend. Open house and an informal buffet supper will be held following the game.

One of Upsilon's newest projects is the formation of a Mothers' Club, the first meeting of which will be held Sunday afternoon, Nov. 10, at the house.

Rymer-Medow

An impressive ceremony Saturday in Sinai Synagogue made Miss Genevieve Rymer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Rymer of this city, the bride of Harold Medow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Medow, also of this city. Rabbi Maurice Parzen officiated. Matron of honor was Mrs. M. L. Moskowitz of Hammond, Ind., while the bridesmaids were Miss Evelyn Rymer, maid of honor, and Ida Fisher of Mishawaka, Lee Goldberg and Betty Medow. Groomsmen were Mr. Moskowitz, Seymour Rymer, Maurice Goldman of Chicago and Charles Feig. After a dinner and reception in the temple, Mr. and Mrs. Medow left for an eastern honeymoon. They will reside in Mishawaka.

Mrs. Scheer Elected

Mrs. Arthur F. Scheer Wednesday was installed as new president of the South Bend chapter of Hadassah. Rabbi Albert M. Shulman of Temple Beth El directed the ritual. Other new officers are Mrs. Milton Rubin and Mrs. Maurice Baille, vice presidents; Mrs. Harry Coffman, recording secretary; Mrs. Abe Cohen, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Reuben From, treasurer. Merle Fischer of Los Angeles, Cal., spoke on the world-wide activities of Hadassah.

Delegates from South Bend to a national convention Oct. 30 to Nov. 3 are Mrs. Scheer, Mrs. Max Hurwitz, Mrs. Ben Piser, Mrs. Barney Sandock, Mrs. Coffman, Mrs. Leo R. Cohn, Mrs. From, Mrs. A. G. Cohen and Miss Irma Sampson.

Miss Rose Fox is serving as general chairman for an annual membership tea to be given by the Junior Hadassah from 2:30 to 5 p. m. Sunday in the Bronzewood room of the Hotel Lasalle. The party will honor new members.

The South Bend Menorah Players will present their first play for the season Dec. 15 in the auditorium of Central High School under auspices of Mamre Lodge No. 824, B'nai B'rith. It will be a three-act drama, "Call It a Day," by Dodi Smith, and will be directed by Jack Victor.

The Gamma Alpha Beta opened up their football season last week against the North Side Tigers, winning in the last quarter by 24-18. The highlight of the game was a 90-yard dash for a touchdown by Harris Senter.

EVANSVILLE

MRS. FREDERICK DRUCKER
900 E. Blackford Ave.

Opening Meeting

The first fall luncheon of Washington Ave. Temple Sisterhood was at 12:30 p. m. Tuesday in the Temple House; Mrs. Frederick Drucker presiding. Rabbi Milton Greenwald spoke on, "The Harvard Conference on Contemporary Issues." Officers are: President, Mrs. Frederick Drucker; first vice-president, Mrs. Irvin Weil; second vice-president, Mrs. Jerome Salm; secretary, Mrs. Abe Levy; treasurer, Mrs. Mose Barnett; directors, Mesdames Louis Marks, Sam Hamburg, Jesse Fine, Phil Raphael, Arthur Shane, Mark Siegel, Clarence Kahn and A. A. Brentano. Mrs. Alvin Brown and Mrs. Mark Siegel were luncheon chairmen.

Mrs. Harry Lowenthal, chairman of the Sewing Committee of the Sisterhood, reported that the members completed 50 layettes over the summer for the Red Cross.

The Editor's Chair:

There has been some talk in the community among these interested in certain candidates for the board of the Jewish Federation about "stacking" the meeting with their friends to assure the election of certain persons. It seems to me that nothing could be more detrimental to a healthy communal life. It is quite possible that certain candidates might be elected in this manner, but such tactics would defeat everything it is hoped the annual meeting may accomplish.

I look forward to a real election at the meeting, and the recording of the community wishes in respect to the people they want to guide it. But I also look forward to something more. I have hopes that after the election, when the present community leaders see that the community is in earnest about a democratically-elected organization to make its decisions, when they see that the community wants to exercise its right to vote for its representatives, that these leaders will of their own accord transform the federation into a real community council.

By some tactics certain individuals might be elected, but then the community leaders could rightfully say that this is just the thing we try to avoid by our present arrangement. If we had a community council, they could charge, any ambitious group could dominate the council to the detriment of everything wholesome and beneficial.

Also it seems that there is some confusion about who can vote in the elections. Anyone who contributes to the annual Jewish Welfare Fund drive is a member of the community and as such may vote in the election.

2 Conventions Show Strength of Lodge, Sisterhoods

Two of Indiana's most influential and significant Jewish organizations, the B'nai B'rith and the Indiana State Federation of Temple Sisterhoods, will in a few days in their annual conventions evidence again the successful fulfillment of their particular share of the work of the Jewish community of our State.

The complete programs of both groups, published elsewhere in this paper, indicate the scope of the achievements of the groups, and the elemental nature of the work being done.

Although other States and other localities may boast fruitful and effective B'nai B'rith work, it is well worth the chance of contradiction to say that in no State is B'nai B'rith as strong and alert to its responsibilities as in Indiana.

Although Temple Sisterhoods dot the nation like pins cluttered on a map, the Indiana Federation has earned the highest respect and warmest congratulations from national headquarters for the way in which it has fulfilled its appointed tasks.

The Indiana Jewish community has many achievements for which it has earned national recognition, but all of these in almost one way or another are tied up with the work of either the B'nai B'rith or the Temple Sisterhoods or their leaders.

I. H. C. Enrolls Forty New Members

Enrolling of forty new members by the Indianapolis Hebrew Congregation as announced in the Temple Bulletin this week must indicate a similar response to solicitation throughout Indiana. A Jew's first allegiance, notwithstanding every other argument, is to his synagogue, and it is becoming to be accepted more and more as a statement of fact that other organizations cannot exist and have little reason for existence without the flourishing of the basis and root of all Jewish life—the synagogue.

Temple comes first, is a statement which brooks no contradiction. And for those who would search for some sign of weakness in this return to the synagogue, let it be pointed out that the congregation of today, with its courageous and out-spoken rabbinate, is just as concerned with social progress, with equality of opportunity, and with social justice, as any political group or any civic-minded organization.

The synagogue today is embarked on the road toward the ideal of the prophets just as in the time when what progress there was towards a finer civilization followed in the wake of the prophetic men of Israel.

How To Avoid Conflicts

In arranging affairs of state-wide significance, organization leaders throughout Indiana might do well to consult The Jewish Post's "Date Clearance Bureau." Although the bureau is established for Indianapolis affairs alone, it certainly is advisable to avoid such conflicts as that of the two State conventions this week-end, and the appearance of Vincent Sheean at the opening of the Kirshbaum Forum this Sunday night. Some who might otherwise attend these two conventions are staying in Indianapolis in order to hear the famous war correspondent and author. But even those who plan to attend the two conventions will regret their inability to hear Mr. Sheean.

As soon as any affair is scheduled and the date is telephoned to The Post's office, it is listed in the bureau. Although The Post does not presume to control organizations in arranging their affairs, it certainly is true that no organization wishes to schedule an affair knowing that it will have competition from another group for attendance. In this way, the bureau acts effectively to avoid conflicts. Organizations throughout Indiana, in arranging affairs which they feel may attract attendance from other communities are invited to use the date clearance bureau.

Chaplin Film Showing Pogroms, Ghettos Applauded

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

NEW YORK—Marked by the breaking of two precedents, Charlie Chaplin's long-awaited film lampoon of Chancellor Adolf Hitler, "The Great Dictator," opened Tuesday night at the Astor and Capitol theaters before distinguished and enthusiastic audiences.

Speaking in a film for the first time in his long career, the famous comedian, in the climactic scene, virtually steps out of character to voice what is obviously a personal and long-nurtured plea for a return to sanity and tolerance by a world ridden by war and hate.

The appeal, delivered in impassioned tones that startled an audience which had hardly become accustomed to the clipped, somewhat British-accented voice of the hitherto silent actor, brought a spontaneous burst of applause.

In the film Chaplin, who is of Jewish parentage, plays a dual role, that of a Jewish barber and Adenoid Hynkel, dictator of Tomania. The barber role merges into the dictator role at the moment when Hynkel's troops overrun the neighboring land of Osterlich, affording the barber-dictator his opportunity to speak his mind.

Many of the scenes are laid in the city's ghetto and a central theme running throughout the film is the dictator's insane persecution of the Jews. A number of the scenes are concerned with "spontaneous" pogroms. Paulette Goddard plays the part of a girl of the ghetto.

A notable achievement of Chaplin's is the fidelity with which he has reproduced the psychopathic frenzy of Hitler's oratory and the very tone and inflection of his voice. Other notorious Nazi characters lampooned in the film are Propaganda Minister Goebbels, who emerges as Herr Garbitsch, and Marshal Goering, who becomes Herr Herring. In the latter part of the picture Hynkel is joined by Benzino Napoloni, dictator of Bacteria, a caricature of Mussolini, played by Jack Oakie. Another important role is carried by the famous Yiddish actor, Maurice Moscovitch, who died several months ago, who plays the part of Jaekel, a resident of the ghetto.

Freedom of the Press

State Association Would Ban Kentucky Grouping

To the Editor:

May I make a few informative and not controversial comments with reference to your editorial captioned, "Convention Program Shows Need."

First of all, let me make it clear that Louisville belongs to the Indiana-Kentucky State Association; Ashland, to the Ohio State Association; Paducah, to the Missouri State Association; Lexington, I do not know, and Harlan is a new lodge.

Prior to the formation of the Harlan Lodge, there were only four lodges in the State of Kentucky, all widely separated from each other. Now that Kentucky has five lodges, a movement was begun last year for the possible formation of their own state association. I believe I speak for the Indiana-Kentucky State Association when I say that Kentucky may form their own association whenever they see fit, and with the sincerest good wishes of our association. And, if anyone can do it certainly Maurice Grossman is the man.

There is a reason, and a good reason, too, why no one from Louisville was placed on any of our convention committees. For several years past, every president of our association has tried to have some member of the Louisville Lodge serve on some important committee, but to no avail. You are absolutely correct when you state, "That there was no idea of discrimination." For the past few years our association attempted several times to elect such men as Tony Levitan and Harry Resnick and possibly others, too, to important offices that would lead to the presidency of the association, but were turned down.

Surely, with the above facts, you must agree that it is not the association's fault, nor was Louisville neglected.

ANDREW FRIED,
Secretary-Treasurer of the Indiana-Kentucky State Association of B'nai B'rith Lodges

Religious School To Consecrate Twelve

Twelve members of the religious school of the Indianapolis Hebrew Congregation will be consecrated at special services at 11 a. m. Sunday at the Temple. The members, who will be inducted into the primary classes of the school, are Barbara Ann Dee, David Lee Goldblatt, Joyce Greenstein, Sandra Jean Hafner, Roberta Ann Isaacs, Carolyn Jaffe, Elaine Jaffe, James Mossler, Beverly Porges, Henrietta Rosenberg, Shirley Steinberg and Patricia Ann Taylor.

Six other children, including Betty Dee, Dick Goldstein, Ruth Greenstein, Carole Margolis, Jack Rabb and Stanley Talesnick, will take part in the ceremony which will include a procession about the Temple, in which the Torah will be carried. The rabbis, officers of the congregation and congregation organizations will take part in the ceremony.
